VEGETINE

—WILL CURE—

SCROFULA,

Scrofulous Humor,

Vegetine will eradicate from the system every taint of Scrofula and Scrofulous Humor. It has permanently cured thousands in Boston and vicinity who had been long and painful sufferers.

Cancer, Cancerous Humor.

The marvelous effect of Vegetine in case of Cancer and Cancerous Humor challenges the most profound attention of the medical faculty, many of whom are prescribing Vegetine to their patients.

Canker.

Vegetine has never failed to cure the most indexible case of Canker.

Mercurial Diseases.

The Vegetine meets with wonderful success in the cure of this class of diseases.

Salt Rheum.

Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, &c., will certainly yield to the great alcrative effects of Vegetine.

Erysipelas.

Vegetine has never failed to cure the most inveterate case of Erysipelas.

Pimples and Humors on the Face.

Reason should teach us that a blotchy, rough or pimpled skin depends entirely upon an internal cause, and no outward application can ever cure the defect. Vegetine is the great blood purifier.

Tumors, Ulcers or Old Sores

Are caused by an impure state of the blood. Cleanse the blood thoroughly with Vegetine, and these complaints will disappear.

Catarrh.

For this complaint the only substantial benefit can be obtained through the blood. Vegetine is the great blood purifier.

Constipation.

Vegetine does not act as a cathartic to debilitate the bowels, but cleanses all the organs, enabling each to perform the functions devolving upon them.

Piles.

Vegetine has restored thousands to health who have been long and painful sufferers.

Dyspepsia.

If Vegetine is taken regularly, according to directions, a certain and speedy cure will follow its use.

Faintness at the Stomach.

Vegetine is not a stimulating bitters which creates a factitious appetite but a gentle tonic, which assists nature to restore the stomach to a healthy action.

Female Weakness.

Vegetine acts directly upon the causes of these complaints. It invigorates and strengthens the whole system, acts upon the secretive organs and allays inflammation.

General Debility.

In this complaint the good effects of the Vegetine are realized immediately after commencing to take it; as debility denotes deficiency of the blood, and Vegetine acts directly upon the blood.

VEGETINE
Is Prepared by
H. R. STEVENS, Boston.
Vegetine is sold by all Druggists.

Select Story.

AN ILLUSION.

If Lefebvre's two sisters and his aunts had not treated the whole thing so superciliously, and his cousin Laura, in spite of her generous behavior, had not every now and then looked large-eyed disapproval, very likely it would have come to nothing long before. But of course those women, and a host of other female relations, were not going to be wiser than he. Lucian Lefebvre, captain of the engineers and colonel by brevet, stationed at the capital, and guardian of the nation's citadel—dancing duty, Belle called it.

"Introduced to that doll?" said Bell, when he came up to them, at the secretary's, proposing the introduction. Belle was the married sister; Helen was unmarried, and a little passee, but a person of dignity. "Why, does she talk?"

"Quite a pretty piece of mechanism," said his aunt. "Very well put together."

Lefebvre looked at them in amazement and indignation. "Really," said he, "it is wonderful what women are made of."

"Not this one," said Helen, deliberately putting up her glass. "She is false from the crown of her head to the sole of her foot. How can you be so taken in? I dont know what you are made of, Lucian, to think of introducing such a creature to your sisters, nor how she made her way here."

He was just turning on his heel in speechless anger, but remembering he had left the side of the lady in dispute for the avowed purpose of bringing his sisters to her, he exclaimed: "Whatever she is, some of you must come with me and be presented to her as I am here for that purpose, and I will not have her insulted."

"Indeed!" said Helen, looking over the top of her fan into infinite space, but not stirring.

"I will go, Lucian," said Laura, who had not spoken. "Come, Bell, help me out."

"Well, Laura, for a little goose! However I will never desert a companion in arms. Do you suppose she has observed our council of war?" as they moved off beside Lucian, with his chin well in the air. "She is a fine picture. A person should go on the stage that can make up as well as that. I should like to see her in the privacy of her midnight retirement. How old should you think? Forty?"

"Forty!" cried Lucian. "I heard her myself arranging for a picnic on her twenty-third birthday."

How touching! In the life to come. Her twenty-third! She'll never see her forty-third again in this life."

"Belle!"

"Oh yes, Lucian; if you choose to force unwelcome acquaintance on your family, at least they must enjoy freedom of opinion concerning it. The very set the woman is with speaks for her good evening, general. What a crush! All because of this young Russian hero—a beauty, isn't he? Ah, you too are making for the cynosure, I see; all the world is being presented. It will never do not to follow the fashion."

And directly Lucian was presenting his sister, Mrs. Garnier, and his cousin, Miss Laura Nelson; and Miss Nelson had behaved exactly as Lucian wished; and although he could never have said what was wanting in Mrs. Garnier's behavior, he knew that a challenge of defiance was in her very air, and that her mere manner had told the other woman what she thought of her. Perhaps Bell presumed that that was the way to manage him. He would shortly let her know.

Colonel Lefebvre came clattering down stairs next morning, his horse waiting at the door.

"Whither bound, Lucian?" cried Helen, from the library.

"To ride with Mrs. De Berrian."

"Oh, your new widow," she said, gayly. "Have you called yet? No? How very accommodating in her to ride with you first!"

"She is not a punctilious fool," he muttered, drawing on his glove.

"Certain punctilios," put in Aunt Susan, "are only self respect."

"If you will go and call with me, Nell," said Lucian, "I've no doubt she will postpone the ride."

"Now, Lucian dear, you know I hate not to gratify you," said Helen. "But really the last thing Belle said was that it would not do. She should not call, nor, could I, if for nothing else, for little Laura's sake, who is too young and innocent to have anything to do—"

"Just as you please," he said, angrily, and had slammed the door behind him. You can imagine his surprise when, as he reined his horse up at the steps of the house where Mrs. De Berrian was visiting, he saw his cousin Laura coming down with Mrs. Vaughn, a leader of the fashions, with whom she sometimes went out; for Laura was an heiress, and but little gain said in her wishes.

"I thought you would like to have me," Laura said, timidly looking up with her brown eyes, as he dismounted. She never did have any spirit.

"It is just like you, Laura," he said fervently.

"—I don't think you will admire her so much by daylight," she said, again timidly; and he had laughed and handed her into the carriage and disappeared before she knew she had ventured to say so much.

But a more judicious curtain had been dropped within the drawing-room; and as Mrs. DeBerrian sat pensively leaning her head on her hand that bore a gleaming sapphire, a dark curl straying over the contour of the white hand set in its lace ruff, and the damask shadow of a great vase of roses on the table, taller than herself, falling round her, Colonel Lefebvre thought that he did admire Mrs. DeBerrain quite as much by daylight—although it occurred to him later that Belle would have called it rose-light or curtain-light instead. He was confirmed in his admiration before he left her. He was not sure but that by the time he saw Mrs. DeBerrian again he should be really in love with her. And his little cousin Laura? Well, thank Heaven, he could afford to marry where he chose.

She was rather an enchanting woman after her kind. "I will tell you about her," said Laura to her cousins, when she had endured their reproaches. "She makes it a vital point to please—in her person, her manner, her voice. Her face can only afford smiles, so she never resents, not even such a look as Bell's. She was charmingly dressed. She is visiting people just on the verge of society, Mrs. Vaughn says, but she doesn't seem to belong to them. It is my belief that she has had money, run through nearly all of it, and that is her last throw for station and a husband."

"Laura, where in the world," cried her displeased aunt, "did you pick up such"—

"French novels," said Belle, who had run over. "I must say, Laura, I think you took a great deal on yourself. Now she will return the call."

"She—she would like to be respectable," stammered Laura. "And you know very well that if you want Lucian to go and marry such a woman out of hand, you have only to persecute her."

"Persecute her! You do use select terms. We let her alone—which you had better have done."

"I—I didn't want Lucian to be mortified."

"So you mortify us."

And by the time Lucian came home Laura was in a flood of tears, and sobbed out, in reply to his amazed inquiry: "Oh, they are abusing me so!" And then every one laughed at the idea of their abusing little Laura, the darling of the house.

"Well, well, Laura," said he. "I'll not abuse you. I invite you to our picnic tomorrow to Great Falls. Mrs. DeBerrian will chaperon you."

"Mrs. DeBerrian!" rose the chorus.

"Madam Arroyo, the Spanish minister's wife, invites her."

"Well, to be sure," said Belle catching her suspended breath, "nobody knows anything about her either an adventuress, all the legation say."

"The Count Zara escorts her. I suppose nobody knows anything about him."

The Austrian attache—yes, he hit Nell hard then, he thought. "And the young Russian duke that enchanted you so—"

"Oh, men, all of them!"

"Very fine men, and some of the finest ladies at the capital. I'll take care of you, Laura, if you'll go."

"I'll go, Lucian."

"Perhaps she'd best," said Belle to Helen, at the door. "I shouldn't let him out of my sight, if I were she."

It was a month later when Belle ran over one evening, as usual, now the gayeties were so few, and sat talking gloomily with Helen.

"I never would have believed it of our Lucian," said she. "All but engaged, as he was, Laura, and with her fortune, that would have just doubled his own, and she so gentle—and now perfectly lost and infatuated over this French doll."

"I can't imagine that it is the same brother who turned pale when we came down with carmine on our cheeks the day after we first saw the French play, and who expostulated with us so."

"Our turn now."

"He would have made Laura such a good husband," said one.

"But now this demoralizing woman."—

And while they were bemoaning his decline and fall, the subject of their complaint was whirling away in a palace-car, surrounded by wraps and rugs and lunch basket and periodicals and French candy and Mrs. De Berrian, the wax-lights shining softly down from above on the charming picture the lady made, as, having removed her hat, she leaned back among her cushions under the shelter of the rose-colored scarf passed over her dark curls. Mrs. De Berrian had been summoned to New York on important business; Colonel Lefebvre had suddenly found that he had business there too. Mrs. De Berrian perhaps meant to give him some business before he returned. Neither of them was aware that behind the curtains of a neighboring section, whose berths had been made up and occupied just as the train started, reposed one of his aunts and his cousin Laura.

If simply an infatuation over mere beauty were in case, no one could marvel at Colonel Lefebvre's infatuation. By candle-light at night, behind a veil out doors, in the dim, deep-curtained drawing-room, Mrs De Berrian was worthy a painter's pencil—delicate features, scarlet lips, deep pimples, penciled brows, the sparkle of teeth, the soft dark glow of great eyes, the snowiness of the forehead under multitudinous waves of shadowy hair—beauty could hardly be better imaged forth, although possibly one might tire of it, and of the set, unvarying smile, for all its sweetness. Lucian had not tired of it yet; once or twice there had crossed his mind a suspicion that its owner was not altogether a woman of high principle, but whether he had put the thought away as treasonable, or had felt with a not unusual masculine vanity that he could change all that, or had not just then cared so much for high principle, it did not hinder his own color from mounting when he looked at hers, or his pulse from quickening when this woman touched his hand. As for Mrs. De Berrian, she was beginning to feel a tolerable assurance that at last her pendulous position on "the verge of society" was to be changed for the fixed and solid station of a member of the Lefebvre family, with all their wealth and rank, their respectability, consideration and friends. And when it should be—why then she meant to show the women in that family who she was!

It came near being a settled fact that night as they rolled comfortably along, almost all the rest of the car behind their curtains, the soft light, half gloom, half light, falling softly on the lovely face, a setting moon traveling with them and looking in at the window at every turn. Colonel Lefebvre had changed his seat for one at the lady's side, that the sleepers might not be troubled by their voices—his voice, rather, for it was he that talked; she listened, with the lovely smile, the musical word. His arm lay along the back of the seat, his face was bending over hers; her great eyes were cast up at him in the dim light; her lips seemed to tremble. He was noting the gentle rise and fall of her breath, the charm of every outline of the beautiful head resting on that hand with its gleaming sapphire, aware of a strange quick throb with the thought, half a certainty, half a fear, that all this was doubtless his should he choose to take possession—

"Tickets!" said some one at his elbow—the conductor, who had come aboard at the last station, and who mistook them for a portion of the gay party that had been taken on with himself.

It broke the spell for that night. Colonel Lefebvre started to find how late it was, and went away to his birth, leaving Mrs. Deberrian, ill pleased, to order the porter about as he made up her own.

Colonel Lefebvre woke very early on the next morning from his fitful slumber, restless with feeling and with heat, and looking from his window, saw that they were rolling along the green flats of New Jersey. Then he half parted his curtains, and took an observation down the car. Some one was up before him—some young girl; he could not see plainly, with all the obstruction of drapery. There was a familiar fling of a scarf. Good gracious! was that his cousin Laura? The sight of her made him fall back on his pillow and begin to recall the events of the evening before. It was just then that some one came rustling by his closed curtains—a lady who wished to make her toilet before the rest of the car was astir. The sound stopped short; the person did not go on. Instinctively Colonel Lefebvre glanced through the crack of his curtians. A netting of the lady's fringe had caught on the hook of some projected valise—the porter was disengaging it—an oldish, frowzy sort of woman. One uplifted hand grasped the curtain for support; upon it shone a gleaming sapphire. The drops started out on his forehead. Was it—Impossible! He sat up and glared at her. She held a toilette-case in her other hand. She was making for the little dressing room. There was the same bronze green luster silk, the same black lace about the throat, the lapel of the same rosy scarf of woolen gauze had been that instant thrown up from her face. But that face! No; it was an absurdity. And yet—It had been a horridly hot night; the best of paint would run; the best of powder would cake and roll off; the penciling of brows would rub all about; the pigment that so darkened and increased the eye would smear here and there raggedly. What had happened to that mouth? Or was there no mouth there. There were no teeth there; they were in her hand. The dimples—they were two long furrows; the scarlet of the mouth had somehow streaked them. And as for the dropping curls—they were dropping off. The beautiful Adelaide De Berrian had gone out like the blown flame of a candle, and left only the ashes—had left only a worn and withered woman with white lips, and a wrinkled pallor that was blotched and bleared, whose face had a mask, whose mother was her painting."

"'False from the crown of her head to the sole of her foot,'" he repeated, in Helen's words, and shut his eyes; and there sat Laura, brown-eyed and fair, with her smooth hair, a little Madonna of a face as he opened them again. An hour afterward, the other women of the car having clamored in vain the last third of that time for admittance, an elegant lady issued from the dressing room, crimped and curled and powdered, a blooming, smiling picture, seated herself in her re-arranged section, and awaited her cavalier. She waited a long while. While she was in the dressing-room that cavalier had stepped off the train at Elizabeth.

As Colonel Lefebvre sat in his aunt's room in the Brevoort that night, he replied to her query concerning his gloom: "Let me be. I have a right to be a little disturbed. I have lost a friend. I have escaped a terrible danger. I have found an invaluable possession that I had mislaid. What did you bring Laura here for? Her summer finery? I am going to take her a long drive in the park to-morrow morning. Say, Aunt Maria, don't you make any purchases till we come back. And, Aunt Maria, don't you think it would be stealing a fine march on them all at home if Laura and I went back on one ticket"—

"One ticket?"

"Well, no, not exactly. Husbands and wives are not one financially, are they? Railways haven't any sentiment."—Harper's Bazar.

Paul Schoeppe in a New Role.

The Cincinnati Commercial of a recent date publishes the following paragraph, under the caption of "Adventures of a Bogus Count:" Many will remember the then notorious case, several years ago, of Paul Schoeppe, who was tried in Pennsylvania for poisoning a Miss Steinecke, who was very wealthy. He was twice convicted of murder in the first degree, and on the third trial was convicted in the third degree. Through the influence of friends he was soon pardoned out of prison. Subsequently he came to Cincinnati, and under the name and title of Count Schulenburg figured in an engagement of marriage with a well-known German actress. On the day the marriage was set for he encountered a former eastern acquaintance, who recognized him, whereupon he immediately fled. Under the same name he was convicted of forgery in Chicago and served two years in the Joliet penitentiary. Afterwards he obtained a position as a German writer on the Courier newspaper in St. Louis, but was soon identified and dismissed. Thence he went to New York city, where he was known as Count Schmettow. As Count Schmettow he recently applied for by letter and obtained a position on the editorial staff of one of the Cincinnati morning dailies. Recently he arrived there. He was not long in the city before he met an old St. Louis acquaintance who threatened to expose him. The last known of the count he was taking an afternoon train for the west.

He Couldn't Drink Wine.

There was a noble youth who, on being urged to take wine at the table of a famous statesman in Washington, had the moral courage to refuse. He was a poor young man, just beginning the struggle of life. He brought letters to the great statesman, who kindly invited him home to dinner.

"Not take a glass of wine?" said the great statesman, in wonderment and surprise.

"Not one single glass of wine?" echoed the statesman's beautiful and fascinating wife, as she rose, glass in hand, and, with a grace that would have charmed an anchorite endeavored to press it upon him.

"No," replied the heroic youth, resolutely gently repelling the proffered glass.

What a picture of moral grandeur was that! A poor, friendless youth refusing wine at the table of a wealthy and famous statesman, even though proffered by the fair hands of a beautiful lady.

"No," said the noble young man, his voice trembling a little and his cheek flashed "I never drink wine; but (here he straightened himself up and his words grew firmer) if you have got a little good old rye whisky, I don't mind trying a snifter?"

STATE ELECTIONS.

Last Tuesday New York elected a Secretary of State, a full House and half the Senate; New Jersey a Governor, one-third of the Senate, and a full House; Massachusetts elected a full State ticket and Legislature; Wisconsin a Governor, full State ticket, half the Senate and a full House; Minnesota a Governor, full State officers, and Legislature; Connecticut, half the Senate and a full House; Virginia a full State ticket and Legislature; Mississippi the same; Maryland elected a Controller and Legislature; Kansas a Chief Justice, Lieutenant Governor and local officers; Nebraska a Chief Justice and two Regents of the University; and Pennsylvania a State Treasurer, Auditor General, Supreme Judge and local officers. The results as far as learned up to Thursday morning will be found elsewhere.

OUR ENGLISH MINISTER.

Just as Don Cameron had the job nicely set up for his reverend sire to go to England to represent this country at the Court of St. James, the bottom fell out and Simon did not go. Don first fixed the Pennsylvania delegation in Congress, and then got the President and Secretary Evarts to partly promise that the choice of that delegation should be appointed, and when that choice was made known it was none other than their lord and master, Simon. This pill the administration could not swallow. As Secretary Evarts said, they had no idea that the Pennsylvania Republicans would resurrect a man who had been so long dead that his son and heir was in possession and enjoyment of the estate.

As the son was dismissed from the Cabinet with a slap in the face when Hayes was forming a new one, so the old man is now shelved in a very similar manner. It must be growing painfully apparent to the Cameron Dynasty that their reign is drawing rapidly to a close.

Mr. John Welsh, of Philadelphia, a gentleman whose character is above reproach, has been appointed by the President to fill the important mission to England, and every good citizen of this Commonwealth will be pleased to learn of his confirmation by the Senate. Mr. Welsh is a Republican, but the contrast was so strong that all Democrats were delighted to hear of the rejection of Cameron for such a man as John Welsh. He will do credit to the nation.

ODD FELLOWSHIP.

Dr. Creigh, the celebrated Masonic writer and orator, at a recent celebration by the Odd Fellows at Claysville, gave a splendid address.

At the beginning of his remarks he made a plea for the liberty of opinion. He traced this doctrine from Wm. Penn's time down to the present—a period of two hundred years—and showed it was the corner stone of American liberty. In the course of this argument he had animadverted quite severely upon Gov. Jos. Ritner, the Anti-Secret Society man of the seventeen Governors who had presided over Pennsylvania's interests.

The only argument now in common use against Odd Fellows, Masons, &c., the speaker claimed to be their "secresy." In meeting this, he brought forward arguments from the Constitution of the United States—of Pennsylvania, and the laws, and even claimed a vindication of secrecy by the acts, life and teachings of Christ.

He then showed by official statement that there were 44 Grand Lodges in the United States under one General Grand Lodge, with a membership of 438,100—having 5,960 lodges under its control—with a fund of $4,-183,694, out of which during the year 1876 $1,508,685 had been paid for the relief of the members, their widows and orphans. That in the State of Pennsylvania there were 950 lodges with a membership of 102,-178, that during the year 1876 21,541 persons had been relieved by these lodges, 1,116 families provided for, $287,000 paid for the relief of the Brethren, $14,469 for the relief of families, $78,788 expended to educate the orphans and bury the dead. That in Washington county there were 19 Lodges with a membership of 876, all striving nobly for the principles of the Order, having a fund of $21,000 for charity.

The large crowd listened attentively to the close and went away better acquainted and with better impressions of the aims and objects of secret benevolent associations.

SENATOR MORTON DEAD.

Oliver P. Morton, United States Senator from Indiana, died at his home in Indianapolis Thursday morning, November 1st. He was a great sufferer for twelve years, having been partially stricken with paralysis in 1865. Mr. Morton was Governor of Indiana during the entire period of the civil war, and it is said that his incessant efforts while in that office were the cause of his paralytic stroke. He was a bitter partisan, and his ambition was to be President of the United States. Governor Williams will probably appoint Hon. D. W. Voorhees to fill the vacancy.

OTHER STATES.

New York State went Democratic by 20,-000 to 24,000. John Morrissey defeated A. P. Schell for State Senator.

In Maryland the Democratic Governor is elected by 22,299 majority.

New Jersey elected McClellan Governor by a majority of 12,000.

The whole ticket was elected in Virginia without opposition.

Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nebraska, Wisconsin and Illinois were carried by the Republicans by about their usual majorities.

Democrats should favor reform. John Morrissey was indicted in 1855 for murder, in 1856 for gambling and for instituting a prize fight in 1857, four indictments for assault and battery with intent to kill—four different persons.—Gazette & Bulletin.

And now he is a Republican candidate for the Senate, in the wealthiest district in New York city, and is supported by George William Curtis and William Cullen Bryant, if the tone of their papers means anything. Yes, he ought to be reformed.

Why is it that the Republican does not frankly acknowledge the defeat of its party at the polls? It says: "Our State is in doubt. We would not be surprised if we had been defeated." When that was written it knew to a certainty that the State had gone Democratic by 12,000 majority. We might as well say that Massachusetts is in doubt.

THE STATE ELECTION!!

Pennsylvania Redeemed!!

DEMOCRATIC MAJORITY 12,000!!

Once More the Rooster Crows!

The election held in this State last Tuesday resulted in the overthrow of the dominant party, and the choice of Trunkey, Schell and Noyes to fill the offices for which they had been nominated by the Democratic party. In Philadelphia, the stronghold of Republicanism, Judge Thayer was defeated for District Attorney by Henry S. Hagert, Democratic candidate. The Democratic majority in the State is from 10,000 to 12,000. In Columbia county the vote was light, neither party seeming to take a very active interest in the result. Below we give a table showing the vote for President last year and that for Supreme Judge now:

The returns from Clarion, Elk, Forest, Juniata, Potter, Susquehanna, Sullivan and Wayne are very meagre and furnish only a slight basis for estimate, but the remaining 58 counties as given above will be changed very little by the full official count. In Susquehanna the greenback vote is comparatively very heavy. In Schuylkill county the greenbackers polled 3,000 votes.

A FEW FACTS ABOUT OUR AMENDED CONSTITUTION.

In the formation of our Government, its leaders, guided by the past, determined to make it one of law, and whilst defining the powers of each department, and attaching prudent limitations, recognized the right of revolution, or amendment by peaceful methods. Foreseeing that political changes would become necessary in the future, the Declaration of Independence boldly sets forth "that Whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute a new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established, should not be changed for light and transient causes and accordingly, all experience hath shown, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But, when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government and to provide new guards for their future security.

The power of amendment was therefore incorporated in the Constitution of 1787. The Declaration of Rights of the State of Pennsylvania adopted this principle, and the constitution provided for amendments.

The necessity for a change in our State Constitution had long been apparent, but was delayed for years by the jealousy of parties, and, for a time, by the excitement of civil war. The evil of the undue growth of corporate influence, special legislation, assertion of unknown and unprecedented powers by the different branches of the State Government, local mismanagement, and the evils of purchased suffrage, all tended to demand a change in the fundamental law that would give the people an improved Constitution.

Therefore, after many struggles, an act was passed by the Legislature in 1871, submitting to a popular vote the question of calling a Convention to amend the Constitution of Pennsylvania. Exclusive of the counties of Beaver and Elk, (for which we cannot give the vote) the people decided in favor of a convention by a vote of 328,354 against 70,-205.

The Legislature of 1872 therefore met under peculiar circumstances. It was their duty to frame an act to carry into effect the will of the people. The Senate, by the seating of McClure, was a tie, and McClure, was an Independent Republican, holding, as it were, the balance of power in that body. The House was nearly two thirds Republican and hostile to any change that might interfere with the existing order of affairs.

The main question between the two Houses was the basis of representation; the majority in the Senate being in favor of impartial representation, and, so far as possible, a non partizan body. The House, on the contrary, was violently opposed to any amendment to the Constitution, and desired to have the members chosen from the gerrymandered Senatorial and Representative Districts, in the manner that Senators and Representatives were chosen. This plan would not only have secured a lot of low politicians and ringsters as members of the Convention, but would have defeated the object of the people in securing an amended Constitution. That portion of the Senate Bill relating to the selection of members of the proposed convention was as follows:

That at the general election to be held on the second Tuesday of October next, there shall be elected by the qualified electors of this Commonwealth, delegates to a convention to revise and amend the Constitution of this State; the said convention shall consist of one hundred and fifty-two members to be elected in manner following; twenty members thereof shall be elected in the State at large, as follows: each voter of the State shall vote for not more than ten candidates, and the twenty highest in vote shall be declared elected, and the other one hundred and thirty-two delegates shall be apportioned to and elected from the different Senatorial districts, as formed by the apportionment act dated May 6, A. D. 1871, of the State, four delegates to be elected for each Senator therefrom, and in choosing all district delegates each voter shall be entitled to vote for one half the number of members to be chosen from his district. And six additional delegates shall be chosen from the city of Philadelphia by a vote at large in said city, and in their election no voter shall vote for more than three candidates, and these highest in vote shall be declared elected.

Sec. 2. The following regulations shall apply to the aforesaid election, to be held on the second Tuesday of October next, and to returns of the same:

As each House insisted on its Bill, a Committee of Conference was appointed, the committee on the part of the Senate being Messrs. White, Billingfelt, and Buckalew, and on the part of the House Messrs. Cooper, Starr, and Brockway,—Messrs. Buckalew and Brockway representing the minority in each House.

This committee met for the first time March 28th 1872, and organized by electing Harry White Chairman and C. B. Brockway Secretary, and then adjourned to meet again at 8 p. m. that evening. At that meeting, Mr. Cooper moved, and Mr. Starr seconded a motion to adopt the House Bill. The motion was lost by a tie vote. The same gentlemen then moved to amend the first section so as to select 100 delegates, as Representatives were then elected, and 34 delegates at large, each elector to vote for 17. A division of the question was called for. The first division was to the election of the 34 delegates at large, which was carried by one vote. The second division was lost by a tie vote. The Committee then adjourned to meet at 8½ a. m., March 29th. At that meeting Mr. Buckalew was absent and the Committee adjourned to meet at 6 p. m. Then Mr. Cooper moved to amend by substituting a bill of his own, which motion was lost. Many subsequent meetings were held, but finally, on the 3d, of April the Committee unanimously agreed to the following section, which was adopted, viz:

At the general election to be held on the second Tuesday of October next, there shall be elected by the qualified electors of this Commonwealth delegates to a convention to revise and amend the Constitution of this State: the said convention shall consist of one hundred and thirty-three members, to be elected in manner following: Twenty-eight members thereof shall be elected in the State at large, as follows: each voter of the State shall vote or not more than fourteen candidates and the twenty-eight highest in vote shall be declared elected: ninety-nine delegates shall be apportioned to and elected from the different Senatorial districts of the State, three delegates to be elected for each Senator therefrom; and in choosing all district delegates each voter shall vote for no more than two of the members to be chosen from his district, and the three candidates highest in vote shall be declared elected, except in the county of Allegheny, forming the Twenty-third Senatorial district where no voter shall vote for more than six candidates, and the nine highest in vote shall be elected, and in the counties of Luzerne, Monroe and Pike, forming the Thirteenth Senatorial district, where no voter shall vote for more than four candidates, and the six highest in vote shall be elected; and six additional delegates shall be chosen from the city of Philadelphia by a vote at large in said city, and in their election no voter shall vote for more than three candidates, and the six highest in vote shall be declared elected.

Thus was settled the important question as to the selection of delegates to amend our Constitution. It is only necessary to add that the amended Constitution was ratified by a popular vote of 252,744 in favor, 198,-594 against it.

The Lesson of Tuesday.

A heart-sore, despairing Republican party surrendered Tuesday to its own internal demoralization, and gave over Pennsylvania to the Democracy without a contest. Whether the majority shall foot up ten or twenty thousand it matters not; the lesson is the same. The measure of the disaster will not add to the emphasis of the rebuke the people have given to the leaders who seized upon one of the noblest political organizations the country has ever known and degraded it to selfishness and greed. Its once fair temples have been beslimed by the track of the crawling pretenders: its patriotic aims have been subverted to the clamor of mean ambition; its crown has been polluted by the nest of the spoiler, and its strong foundations have been burrowed by the mousing placeman. A faithful President, who remembered his pledges when called to the highest civil trust of a free people, and sought to restore a corrupted government to purity and fidelity, was met with consuming contempt and resentment by those who claimed to have elected him; and the verdict of yesterday in Pennsylvania is but the considerate judgment of an honest people demanding honest public servants. Thus has Pennsylvania spoken, and she has spoken because her people mean to be heard in defense of their own great patrimony. The State candidates voted for were but straws on the current. They were borne to victory or crushed in defeat without regard to their personal merits, for the issues were mightier than the the claims of any mere individuals. All were competent and worthy, and Judge Trunkey, Colonel Schell and Colonel Noyes are victors because they were the only agents through whom the people of the Keystone State could speak in declaring their own omnipotence When such Republican strongholds as Philadelphia and Allegheny falter, and such men as Judge Sterrett, Colonel Passmore and Captain Bart are swept down by tens of thousands, under a banner that once inspired the sublimest patriotism and that has achieved the grandest triumphs in the history of man's struggles for man, there is a meaning in the deliverance that none but the fool-hardy will disregard. Pennsylvania is Democratic today because her people could no longer be Republican under the Republicanism of 1877, and she will remain Democratic until Republicanism recalls itself to its purer purposes and nobler duties.—Times.

Plain Words.

The following, from the Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle and Constitutionalist hits the nail on the head, and is as applicable to one place as another:

A newspaper is not a public institution, but a purely private enterprise. It is usually printed solely and entirely for the benefit of its owners. This may be a selfish, and perhaps, sordid view of the question, but it is, nevertheless, the true and honest one. This obvious fact is too often overlooked by individuals seeking the use of its columns for special purposes.

It is a matter of almost daily occurrence for a publisher to be solicited to print gratuitously certain articles not bearing upon public, but simply advocating private or corporate interests. This is frequently done on the specious plea that supposed industries or municipal interests may be ultimately benefited by the publication, when in reality no effort would be made to secure the result if personal interests were not at the foundation of the transaction.

We are now speaking of covert advertisements, articles written as interesting reading matter, but shrewdly intended to put money in the purses of the individuals or corporations seeking their publicity. This, of course, does not cover great and grave questions of public policy, which every honest and independent journalist will fearlessly discuss without considering who may be pleased or offended, or what effect his course may have upon the question of patronage. The point we desire to make is that the same rules which apply to general business should be invariably extended to newspapers. The advertising columns of a newspaper are exactly like the wares upon a storekeeper's shelves, and it is from their proper and legitimate use that the publisher, in connection with the sale of his paper, obtains the revenues which enable him to issue his journal.

Cost of the National Guard.

There never was a State institution that afforded so poor a return for its cost as the Pennsylvania militia under its present organization. Within the last three years the ordinary expenses of the militia, as the reports of the Auditor General show, have been upwards of $375,000. They have been increasing at a galloping rate with each successive year. In 1874 they were $48,774 87, 1875 they increased to 102,945 44. Last year they arose to $227,665 54. This is exclusive of the expenditures for the militia during the Susquehanna and Luzerne riots. It is exclusive, too, of the expense of maintaining the office of Adjutant General, which is on an average upwards of $15,000 a year Thus the total ordinary expenses of the military establishment for the last three years has amounted to upwards of $420,000. The militia expenses of the present year, which have not yet been audited, will exceed the cost of former years.—Harrisburg Patriot.

The returns were not received in time to enable us to prepare a table of the full vote of the county for this issue. Next week we will give complete official returns.

"A great newspaper in every sense of the phrase" is the judgment of journalists and the people upon the Philadelphia Weekly Times. Not yet a year old, this weekly paper has achieved a success in circulation as well as in influence that is without a parallel. It embraces eight pages or fifty-six columns full to overflowing with readable matter gleaned from every part of the wide fields of Politics, Literature, Science and Art. The editorial page abounds in crisp comments on the news of the day, embodying careful and independent judgment fearlessly expressed. The departments relating to Home and Society and the Farm and Garden make it welcome at every fireside, and offer from week to week temptations that are irresistible to the scissors of an editor. Fiction, poetry and tales of travel and adventure find a place in every number. But the great distinctive feature of the Philadelphia Weekly Times is its current series of chapters on the Unwritten History of the War. Every one of these is from the pen of a prominent actor in the late conflict between the States, and describes some phase of the war that came within his own personal observation. No newspaper ever before presented such an array of contributors as appear in this department. Among them are such men as Hon. Carl Schurz, Hon. A. G. Curtin, General Joseph E. Johnson, General Joseph Hooker, General James Longstreet, Hon. John W. Forney, General G. T. Beauregard, General Wm. B. Franklin, Hon. John H. Reagan, Hon. Simon Cameron, General Richard Taylor, General John C. Fremont, and such women as Mrs. Stonewall Jackson, Mrs. E. E. Briggs ("Olivia,") and Mrs. Jessie Benton Fremont.

At this season when people are electing their newspapers for the next year no one should fail to send for and examine a specimen copy of this truly remarkable journal.

LADIES UNION AID SOCIETY.

The ladies of the several churches of the town have acted on our suggestion made some time ago, and organized an Aid Society for the purpose of alleviating the sufferings of the poor during the winter. Mrs. C. R. Buckalew is President, Mrs. W. Neal, Mrs. W. Elwell and Mrs. H. G. Phillips are Vice Presidents, Mrs. M. H. Clark, Treasurer, and Mrs. L. Ent, Secretary. The society meets every Tuesday afternoon at the residence of I. W. Hartman. Committees have been appointed to canvass the town, and reports are made at each meeting. Contributions of clothing, provisions, money or anything else that can be used for the relief of the poor may be sent to Mrs. I. W. Hartman's, where it will be judiciously distributed by the several committees.

The Episcopal Church Mite Society has proven a great success. The programme of entertainment is conducted by a committee who prepare musical and dramatic pieces with which to enliven the evening. At the residence of John A. Funston, Esq., last Wednesday evening, a rare treat was afforded the large company present. The programme consisted of tableaux, vocal and instrumental solos and duetts, songs by the Quartette Club, and an amusing one act drama. The "mites" amounted to something over eleven dollars. Thus far these gatherings have been highly entertaining, and much credit is due the ladies of the committee on entertainment, as well as the others who have assisted. The next meeting will be at the residence of C. F. Knapp on Wednesday evening. A general invitation is extended.

SAVE THE OLD PAPER.—Never throw away old paper. If you have no wish to sell it, use it in the house. Some housekeepers prefer it to cloth for clearing many articles of furniture. For instance, a volume written by a lady who prided herself on her experience and tact, says: "After a stove has been blackened, it can be kept looking very well for a long time by rubbing it with paper every morning. Rubbing with paper is a much nicer way of keeping the outside of a tea kettle, coffee pot, and tea pot bright and clean than the old way of washing them in suds. Rubbing with paper is also the best way of polishing knives, tinware, and spoons; they shine like new silver. For polishing mirrors, windows, lamp chimneys, etc., paper is better than dry cloth. Preserves and pickles keep much better if brown paper, instead of cloth, is tied over the jar. Canned fruit is not so apt to mould if a piece of writing paper, cut to fit the can, is laid directly on the fruit. Paper is much better to put under a carpet than straw. It is warmer, thinner, and makes less noise when one walks over it."

Towanda, Bradford county is about the size of Bloomsburg. In some respects it compares favorably with our town, and in others, unfavorably. The grading and paving of its streets and sidewalks is not at all creditable, and at night time it is necessary to carry a lantern to get safely over the walks and crossings, and to avoid running into the lamp posts which emit no ray of light, the gas for some reason having been shut off. With bad walks, rough streets, no light, and but one public school to support,(that building being larger and finer than either of ours however) the taxes are higher than they are in Bloomsburg. Its hotels are excellent; the Ward House and Means House conducted by T. R. Jordan and his estimable wife, and the Elwell House kept by John Sullivan would be a credit to any town. During a recent visit there we noticed that every day the business part of the town was thronged with wagons,and the merchants all appeared to be doing a good trade. As a matter of curiosity we examined the several newspapers published there, and found that there is hardly a business man in the place who does not advertise largely. The papers were filled with standing advertisements of home dealers, and those who announced themselves in that way were doing a brisk business. There is no doubt about it, extensive and judicious advertising increases the prosperity and business of a town, and if printers ink were used more liberally here it would not fail to produce good results.

THEY WANTED BREAD OR BLOOD.

The Daily Miltonian gives an account of a desperate fight between a miller and four masked men,near Milton, last Friday,from which we glean the following: A singular case of attempted burglary transpired at Kemmerer's flouring mill, situated about half way between Milton and Watsontown, last Friday night. It seems that a son of Mr. Kemmerer had been working about the mill until midnight, and was just washing his hands before going home, when a man in disguise opened the door, and presenting a pistol at the young man's head demanded some flour or his life, seeming to have a preference for the former, as he at once laid hold of a sack of flour, which he proposed to appropriate to himself. Mr. Kemmerer told him that sack was sold, but he would get him some from another part of the mill, and lowering his light, started, his visitor flourishing the pistol uncomfortably close to his head the while. Arriving at the bin mentioned, Mr. K. suddenly seized a flour stamper, and, quick as thought felled the intruder to the floor, dealing him several blows purely complimentary to the occasion. The racket brought a large dog upon the field of action just in time to extend a welcome to another intruder who opened the door, and was making it very lively for him, when two more men came in, and driving away the dog, rescued the two bleeding robbers who were now lying on the floor, carried them to a wagon in waiting and drove rapidly away.

Mr. Kemmerer was not injured in the affray, and cannot tell how badly the would-be burglars were damaged. No clue to the party has as yet been discovered.

The following preamble and resolutions were adopted by the Catawissa M. E Sunday School at its session Nov. 4th 1877.

WHEREAS, God in his mysterious yet unerring providence has removed from our midst by death Mrs. Lilly R. Willits who has been for a long time intimately identified with our interests as a school, occupying the position of teacher for upwards of fifteen years, we desire to pay this feeble tribute to her memory as an indication of our high appreciation of her successful labors among us, realizing the impossibility of adequately giving expression in language of the loss we have sustained. Therefore,

Resolved, that in the death of sister Willits, our school has suffered the loss of one who was more than ordinarily adapted to the work of Sunday School instruction,one possessed of unusual zeal, energy and fidelity in the cause and whose services were invaluable in every department of Sunday School work.

That we sorrow not as those who have no hope, but rejoice that from her christain life and earnest labors in Christ's vineyard we have the assurance that her sorrows and trials are all past and that she now enjoys "sweet rest in heaven."

That while it is painful to know that we shall never see her face or hear her cheerful voice again yet we would not murmer or complain, but cheerfully submit to the will of Him whose "wisdom is unsearchable and whose ways are past finding out."

That we tender to the afflicted husband,mother, brother and sisters our earnest sympathies feeling however that all consolations we can offer can do but little in assuaging their grief,but would commend them to a merciful God who is abundantly able and willing to impart all needed comfort and grace.

That a copy of the foregoing preamble and resolutions be presented to the family of the deceased and published in the county papers.

What we want to know is whether the Republican supports Hayes or Cameron. If for Hayes, then it must admit that the result of the State election was a square defeat for its party, and a rebuke to the fraudulent President. If for Cameron, it must claim, as all his organs are doing, that the defeat was caused by Republicans who allowed the election to go by default as a rebuke to Hayes for slighting Simon Cameron in the appointment of Minister to England Which is it, Mr. Republican? Give us a square answer.

The old aphorism, "A high rate of interest means a low rate of security," but a bottle of Coxe's Wild Cherry and Seneka, means a sure cure for that hoarseness and cough. Price 25 and 50 cents.

Feeding Cows With Grain.

When our farmers learn to look upon a cow as a piece of wonderful and delicate mechanism for the production of milk, and when they can realize that the product of any improved machine depends upon the quality of the raw material furnished for manufacture, then we may expect a revolution in the matter of feeding dairy cows. A manufacturer of first class woolen fabrics cannot feed his looms with shoddy. A manufacturer of extra family flour cannot fill his hoppers with sprouted wheat; neither can a manufacturer of prime milk, butter and cheese obtain the best results by feeding his cows with hay and grass alone. The experience of many intelligent dairymen goes to prove that the additional profit resulting from the feeding of cows with a reasonable allowance of grain far exceeds the whole profit of feeding from grass and hay alone, while other important elements in the reckoning are increased value of manure, and the diminished quantity of hay required. The average yield of all the cows in Massachusetts (and this is higher in quantity than the yield throughout the United States) is but four quarts, showing of course that there are many cows that give even a less quantity. Now we have in mind a herd of twenty grade cows that gave 133,562 pounds of milk during the year 1873, averaging a daily yield to each cow of 8.50 quarts; 145,296 pounds in the year 1874, averaging each day per cow 9.16 quarts; 141,976 pounds in 1875, averaging 9.05 quarts; while in 1876 they gave 123,596 pounds, yielding a daily average to each cow of 8.50 quarts. To produce this remarkable yield the cows were fed for ten months in the year with a daily allowance to each of one peck of bran and two quarts of cob meal, costing for the year $494. Note the result: twenty ordinary cows fed in the usual way, according to Massachusetts average, giving four quarts per day, and calling the average value of the milk to the farmer two and a half cents per quart, would yield a gross return of $750, or $36 50 to each cow; while on the other hand our more intelligent manufacturer, by the use of better cows, and $494 worth of grain food (without estimating his gain in manure and saving in hay,) gets from his twenty cows, at eight and one-half quarts per day, and at two and a half cents per quarts, a gross result of about $1,550, or $77.50 to each cow; or deducting the cost of the grain food, $491, from the total yield of $1,550, we have $1 056 as the gross product of the milk of twenty cows, as against a $729 product from the cows fed witout grain, or a clean profit of $336, on an investment of $494 in grain, with the original outlay returned. Nor is this all. If the product of these twenty grain fed cows was converted into butter idstead of being sold as milk, it would yield twenty per cent. more cream or butter than the milk from the poorly fed animal, and command at least ten per cent. higher price on account of its superior flavor, color and grain. Results as compared with the average return would be 5,310 pounds of butter at thirty cents per pound, equal to $1,593, as against 2,400 pounds at twenty five cents, equal to $600, or showing a difference in favor of the cows that consumed $494 worth of grain of $993 in the sale of butter. Since it may be claimed by many farmers that their cows are far better than the average, and hence the above comparison is more striking than would appear in their case, we have only to advice such to make the experiment of carefully feeding grain to one cow, and test the difference in the quantity and quality of her milk with the average of the herd, and if a result of only one quarter the gain claimed in our illustration is obtained, that of itself would increase the present average income of the dairy fully seventy-five per cent. This important matter of feeding grain is worthy the careful investigation of every dairyman. —American Cultivator.

The Crop of Potatoes.

Many farmers have large crops of potatoes that cannot be sold readily. Now, what is it best to do with them? Shall they be sold for what they will bring, or is it best to put them in the cellars? Or in the absence of cellar room, is it best to cover them in the field? When they can be sold at a fair prof it, my advice is to sell them in the fall; but if they cannot be thus sold, either store them in your cellar or bury them in the field, and trust to your chances to be able to sell them during the winter around home, or to forward them to a market early in the spring, where there is transportation by water in April. Canals are of little benefit to potatoe growers except in the fall, as they are not open early enough in the spring. A great many potatoes can be sold in villages and large towns during the mild weather, and they must be sold before they sprout much. Potatoes are worth twenty-five cents a bushel to feed to stock—raw to cows and horses and cooked with meal for swine.

To bury potatoes in the field, select a place a little elevated and dig down as low as you can drain the excavation. It may be two feet, one foot, or but a few inches, according to the drain that will command it. Suppose that you have 200 or 300 bushels to bury, the bed should be made about eighty feet wide and as long as necessary, with the potatoes four or five feet deep in the center. When all are in position take long rye straw and set it against the two sides of the heap thick enough to shed rain. Then throw earth against the sides of the pile six or eight inches thick, but none at the top where the straw meets, as an air hole must be left open here till about the time when the ground may be expected to freeze, when a thick covering of earth all over must be applied. In cold climates, as in the Northern States, this covering should be from fifteen to eighteen inches thick; and if the straw is well applied, the potatoes will stand any weather that may be expected. This system is better than to put them into deep pits as was the custom fifty years ago.—T. B. Miner.

The apple crop of Chautauqua county, N. Y., is the largest ever known there, and orchardists are jubilant over the large yield. It is estimated the entire crop will reach the value of $500,000.

There is a female blacksmith in the suburbs of Pittsburg. She is about forty, a German by birth, and for nine years past worked at the trade as a helper to her husband.

Bucks county, Pa., has a smoker who claims to have averaged seven cigars per day during the last fifty-seven years, which would aggregate 145,000 cigars, worth at five cents each, $7,250.

Cork is coming into use in Germany as a filling for winter bed coverlets, in place of feathers. It is said to be not only lighter and cheaper, but decidedly warmer.

Frank Leslie's Newspaper says: "Hartford folks are so scared over hydrophobia that they carry rolls of lunar caustic in their pockets, ready to cauterize themselves, if they are bitten by dogs. It is not uncommon to see a citizen with pants rolled up and caustic in hand, waiting on a street-corner for a mad dog to go by."

Ex-Gov. Coburn, of Maine, is probably the largest individual land owner in America. His landed property comprises 693,000 acres. Of these acres 450,000 are in Maine, 135,000 in Canada, 3500 each in Wisconsin and Dakota, 20,000 in Michigan, and 18,000 in Minnesota.

A young lady visited a Reading drug store the other day, and being suddenly seized with nausea, threw out from her mouth four small lizards. She attributes their presence in her stomach to the use of impure drinking water.

A telegram from Deadwood, Dakota, reports that a man known as "Charley" guided a party of prospectors from the Black Hills to a place on the Rotten Grass, which he said, would yield gold at the rate of "thirty cents to the pan." When they reached the spot he confessed that his story was false, and the exasperated and disappointed miners hanged him from a tree.

OYSTERS.—Thirty thousand people are engaged in the oyster trade of Baltimore, and more than seven hundred schooners and pungies form its Chesapeak oyster fleet. Some experts will open twenty-five gallons of oysters a day, earning twenty five cents per gallon; men, women, girls and boys (mostly of German parentage) are engaged in the packing rooms, where the measuring, washing, assorting and canning go on incessantly. In the raw business the oysters are first packed in airtight cans, which are in turn packed in sawdust and ice for shipment—fifteen million cans of raw being shipped per season. The Tangier and Pocomoke Sounds' oysters are the favorite brands. The State licenses were issued on September 28, and on October 1. The season was opened with enlarged prospects owing to European contracts.

At Kanthalai, Ceylon, there is a magnificent tank on a scale so enormous that it would now cost more than five million dollars to erect it. It was constructed about A. D. 275. Still more remarkable is the great store tank of Kalowewa. Its circumference is supposed to have been hardly less than thirty miles, and it was kept full by two rivers. Channels extended from it over fifty miles, which conveyed an unfailing supply of water to certain large store tanks and thence to minor village tanks. The Ceylon Government proposes to gradually restore many of these great works. Here we see how the ancients prevented famines.

A Danbury man who went to a drug store to have a prescription prepared, seeing nobody but a clerk present, said: "Young man, you are keeping company with a girl?" "Yes, sir," answered the clerk, with a blush. "Do you think the world of her?" "I do," said the clerk firmly, although blushing considerably. "Is she in town?" pursued the customer, anxiously. "No, sir, she is away on a visit." "That will do," said the man, decisively. "You can't fool around any prescription for me." And he went away.—Danbury News.

A very pathetic description of the perils of life in the Black Hills, is given in the following extract from the letter of a miner there to his brother living in Nevada: "I've been spending the last week trying to think of some plan which will enable me to get home. If I only had $600 I could get to Cheyenne, and then it would be easy sailing into civilization. If you send the money by express, the Indians are sure to get it, as they split open a Wells-Fargo coach every few days. If you send it by mail, I wouldn't get it for months, as the postmaster is off on a big drunk most of the time, and can't read anyhow. Don't send a draft on the bank, as it is liable to bust. If you know some friend coming to the Hills, don't trust him with the cash, as he's sure to gamble it all off at Cheyne, or get robbed at Custer. If you can think of some way of sending the money that it will be sure to get here, send it right away; but unless you are sure don't risk it. Perhaps you had better come yourself and bring it." The brother in reply: "Just borrowed $12 to settle a board bill."

This instrument is especially designed for the perfect application of DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY. It is the only form of instrument yet invented with which fluid medicine can be carried high up and perfectly applied to all parts of the affected nasal passages, and the chambers or cavities communicating therewith, in which sores and ulcers frequently exist, and from which the catarrhal discharge generally proceeds. The want of success in treating Catarrh heretofore has arisen largely from the impossibility of applying remedies to these cavities and chambers by any of the ordinary methods. This obstacle in the way of effecting cures is entirely overcome by the invention of the Douche. Its use is pleasant and so simple that a child can understand it. Full and explicit directions accompany each instrument. When used with this instrument, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures recent attacks of "Cold in the Head" by a few applications. CATARRH SYMPTOMS—Frequent headache, discharge falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, thick mucus, purulent, offensive, etc. In others, a dryness, dry, watery, weak, or inflamed eyes, stopping up, or obstruction of nasal passages, ringing in ears, deafness, hawking and coughing to clear throat, ulcerations, scabs from ulcers, voice altered, nasal twang, offensive breath, impaired or total deprivation of sense of smell and taste, dizziness, mental depression, loss of appetite, indigestion, enlarged bowels, choking cough, etc. Only a few of these symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, when used with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, and the instructions carefully followed, as each bottle is accompanied with full directions, is recommended by the proprietor that it has never been one of the failures in a single case of Catarrh, when the directions have been strictly complied with, but in every case it has given perfect relief, making the most distressed feel grateful. DOCTOR PIERCE'S ALTERATIVE Golden Medical Discovery CURES DISEASES OF THE THROAT, LUNGS, LIVER & BLOOD In the wonderful medicine to which the afflicted are above directed for relief, the discoverer believes he has combined in harmony more of Nature's sovereign curative properties, which God has instilled into the vegetable kingdom for healing the sick, than were ever before combined in one medicine. The existence of this fact is found in the great variety of most obstinate diseases which it has been found to conquer. In the cure of Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and the early stages of Consumption, it has astonished the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. While it cures the severest Coughs, it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. By its great and thorough blood-purifying properties, it cures all Humors, from the worst Scrofula to a common Blotch, Pimple, or Eruption. Mercurial disease, Mineral Poisons, and their effects, are eradicated, and vigorous health and a sound constitution established. Erysipelas, Saltrheum, Fever Sores, Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all the numerous diseases caused by bad blood, are conquered by this powerful, purifying and invigorating medicine. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish tinge in eyes, or face, or body, frequent headache or uneasiness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal. It gives perfect satisfaction in every case, or money paid for it is promptly refunded. SOLD BY DRUGGISTS AT $1 PER BOTTLE. Prepared by R. V. PIERCE, M. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY. A CASE OF CONSUMPTION. EAST STONEHAM, Oxford County, Me., May 1 y, 1873. Messrs. SETH W. FOWLE & SONS: Gentlemen.—I feel it my duty to write a few words in favor of DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY. In the early part of last winter I took a severe cold, and shortly after a distressing cough was added to it. My friends did everything they could for me, but without avail. The best physicians that could be procured did not relieve me, and my cough continued all through the winter with increasing severity. I spit blood three or four times a day and my friends considered my case hopeless, gave me up as a Confirmed Consumptive. I was in this condition when I heard of DR. WISTAR'S BALSAMOF WILD CHERRY. I began its use, and before I had taken half a bottle of it my cough and all my other troubles left me and I was cured. I feel so truly indebted to this great remedy for what it has done for me that I send you this voluntary testimony, hoping it may be the means of inducing others who are suffering as I was, to make use of it. It is the best remedy for lung complaints that I have ever heard of, and I am constantly recommending it to my friends. Yours with respect, MRS. MELISSA M. BALL. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY. THE INTERNATIONAL REVIEW. The "International" for 1878 will present the usual number of articles upon religious, scientific, art, political and social subjects most occupying the public attention. It will devote space to European matters so far as they are likely to be interesting to Americans. It will continue to introduce the most popular foreign writers to compete for favor with the best American writers. It will aim to be able, among a, d practical, as well as popular, in the character and style of its presentations. It is safe to say that no other magazine in the world can supply its place in the libraries of Americans who love to consider the progress of events throughout the world, and to know their bearing upon the interests of the United States. Professors Curtius, Heitzendorf, Vogel, Dr. Dollinger, Dr. Dorner, Dr. Neumeyer, Dr. Carl Able, Mr Julius Duboc, Brugsh Bey, M. Rollin Jorquemyns, M. Spuller, Dep., M. Ghidrez, Mr. Hamerton, Mr. Freeman; Rev. Dr. James H. Rigg, Thomas Brassey, M. P., Gubernatis, Madame Villari, Dora D'Istria, Fozzoni Dr. Woolsey, Dr. Peabody, Principal Dawson, Judge Cooley, Dr. Wharton, Wm. C. Bryant, Bay Palmer, Carl Schurz, General Sigel, Dr. Osgood, Alex. Delmar, V. Botta, Eugene Schuyler, Bayard Taylor, E. P. Whipple, and others may be named as special contributors. Thus is organized as powerful an organ of thought and communication as can be easily conceived, and P presents itself for popular support during 1877. It is not known that there is any reason why copies of the "Review" should not be found in every household. It has already the largest circulation of any secular review, because of its popular attractions. These attractions will be developed gradually, and increased as their need is made known.
